Condo & Co-op Owners: Building Power Together

South Shore Condominium & Cooperative Mutual Association

A proposed, voluntary network of buildings, convened by NNA, to share resources, protect ownership and act on common needs. Each building keeps its own board, property and decisions.

Five benefits of working together

A stronger public voice

Make shared requests for public and private investment, preservation resources and stronger consumer protections for owners.

Collective purchasing

Compare common service needs and qualified bids. Ask about group pricing to improve options and seek potential cost savings.

Access to professional help

Connect to legal, engineering, financial and technical resources that fit the building's ownership form and situation.

Shared learning and resident leadership

Exchange useful practices, learn with other buildings and help new board members and residents participate.

Ownership preservation

Act earlier on recurring concerns and organize for support that helps residents remain owners in stable buildings.

How we would start

Talk with your board and neighbors. Bring one shared priority to NNA. Help choose the network's first work and a role you can take on.

Help shape the mutual association

Connect with NNA and help South Shore buildings choose shared priorities, strengthen resident leadership and organize together.

Join the Condo & Co-op Interest Network

Scan to share your building's priorities and tell NNA how you would like to participate.
